

THREE THOUSAND WOMEN VOTERS CHEER HUGHES

Mothers with Babies Dominate Candidate's Spoken Audience.

HEAR SAME APPEAL
HE MAKES TO MEN

Nominee Denies Charge
That His Policy Is Not Constructive.

By RAY H. LEER.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 14.—Three thousand national housekeepers, as Charles E. Hughes has characterized Washington's women voters, packed the Auditorium Theatre here this afternoon and enthusiastically applauded the Presidential candidate's views on equal suffrage.

The audience, which included six negro women, two squaws and three nervous men employed as stenographers, was with the speaker from the moment he addressed the women as "fellow citizens." Having thus placed himself on terms of equality with the veteran suffragists, Mr. Hughes explained that he was about to talk to them in their capacity of voters and leaders of affairs, not as women.

After a brief discussion of suffrage, in which he reiterated his statements in the Carnegie Hall speech of acceptance, Mr. Hughes made good his promise by delivering practically the same speech that he has made to men voters elsewhere. The women rewarded his efforts by following his remarks even more carefully than has been the case at many meetings of seasoned men voters.

Mothers with Babies on Hand.

There was an occasional interruption as a wall from a baby called attention that the meeting was one in which mothers and not professional suffragists predominated. There also were occasional interruptions as a question was asked. There were many interruptions as gloves, hands and high heels were used to show the general acceptance of the Hughes views. But, taken as a whole, the women appeared to have gone to listen rather than applaud.

"I am accustomed to surprises," said Mr. Hughes, "but this meeting is a very grateful surprise. It impresses me profoundly with the truth of that which I said a few days ago in New York, that it is perfectly idle to suppose that the women in this country will be denied the right to vote."

"In my address in answer to the notification of my nomination I confined myself to a statement with respect to the right, apart from the particular method of obtaining it. It seemed to me that if we contemplated the women in this country, the presence of women in gainful occupations, the opportunities constantly widening, growing nature of the demand for woman for recognition, and the fact that a member of the electorate in the government of her country—it seemed to me that no one could suppose that permanently the movement which had obtained such headway could be resisted."

Against Fruitless Agitation.

"It also seemed to me that it was the part of wisdom in this country not to make necessary a continuous agitation by a fruitless opposition. I desired that this question, which is a fundamental one with respect to the composition of the electorate, should be settled at an early date."

"Women as citizens should go into the discussion of political questions as citizens and not from a sex standpoint; and I hope the day will not be long deferred when the agitation for the right to vote in any part of this land will be unnecessary and the right will be recognized throughout the country."

"Feeling that the people were entitled to know my personal position in respect to the proposed Federal amendment, I took early occasion to state it. I did not see how it was possible, although the matter was not mentioned in the platform, to go through a political campaign with my views upon that question concealed. I had long entertained the idea. I think the question is one which should be settled for the entire country, and settled as speedily as possible; and, therefore, while I did not propose to attempt to add, and could not add, to the platform of my party, I stated my personal conviction that the amendment should be submitted and ratified."

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes showed every evidence of being immensely pleased with the conclusion the candidate and his wife were surrounded by women who expressed their approval of Mr. Hughes's sentiments.

His Policy Constructive.

Earlier in the day Mr. Hughes held a meeting at Coeur d'Alene, forty miles from here, where he was heard by a mixed audience of 4,000 men and women. In this address he answered for the first time the charge that his utterances had included no constructive suggestions. He called attention to his repeatedly expressed views on the tariff, protection of working men through such legislation as might be necessary, protection of American citizens abroad, and the need for a fixed foreign policy generally and Mexican policy specifically.

"Isn't that constructive?" Mr. Hughes demanded. "If not, I have a far different idea of what constructive policies are than those entertained by the present Administration."

WHITMAN DRAWS MOOSE SARCASM

Progressives Glad He'll Enter Primaries Because
"We'll Get Showdown."

O'CONNELL RIDICULES
GOVERNOR'S RECORD

Ticket Named, with Sea-bury at Head, Will Stand, He Says.

The Progressives who recently put a complete state ticket in the field, headed by Judge Seabury, have extended a sarcastic welcome to Governor Whitman, who announced his intention of entering the Progressive primaries in response to the invitation of sixteen "converted" Bull Moose leaders. John J. O'Connell, chairman of the Progressive County Committee, issued a statement in which he said:

"We are very glad to see that Governor Whitman is going into our primary and that the running mates picked by him are going in with him. We will now have the showdown we have been seeking ever since the Chicago convention, and which our opponents so far, with the machinery of the party under their control, have been able to prevent."

Mr. O'Connell denounced the allegation made by the Progressives who signed the Whitman invitation that he and his associates intended to substitute the Democratic ticket for their own as without any foundation. He declared the whole ticket, with Judge Seabury at the head, named by the executive committee of the County Progressive Committee, would stand.

Chances Negligible, He Says.

"The delightful humorist who wrote the Whitman invitation," said Mr. O'Connell, "must have kept his tongue in his cheek when he wrote of the progressive record of Governor Whitman. So fine and progressive and intelligent is that record that some of the most influential members of his own party are out to beat him for the Republican nomination, because they know that on Election Day his chances against Judge Seabury are negligible."

William H. Hotchkiss, former chairman of the Progressive State Committee and one of the signers of the Whitman invitation, said yesterday that practically all of the ninety-four members of the Progressive State Committee who endorsed Mr. Hughes for President would have signed the Whitman invitation if they had had more time in preparing it. There were only sixteen signatures to the invitation.

He declared that it was not until last Thursday that the signers of the invitation to the Governor started to work for him. The other members of the state committee who signed the Hughes pledge were avowedly for Governor Whitman, he said, because they realized that to endorse Mr. Hughes and then fail to endorse the Governor would enhance the chances of President Wilson carrying this state. Mr. Hotchkiss declared he believed Governor Whitman would win in the Progressive primaries.

Don't Want to Run.

It is understood that the O'Connell faction of the Progressives are experiencing some difficulty in getting some of the men they named on the state ticket to accept the honor and run in the primaries. Bainbridge Colby, whom they named for United States Senator, is said to be developing a case of cold feet, and is desirous of withdrawing from the ticket. The executive committee of the county committee is very anxious to keep him on the ticket.

HUGHES WILL INVADE
THE "SOLID SOUTH"

Itinerary Changed to Take Him to Nashville September 5.

Charles E. Hughes's campaign managers made a change in his speechmaking yesterday which will cause him to carry his arraignment of the Wilson Administration into the heart of the "Solid South." On September 5 he will speak at Nashville, Tenn.

On that same date Woodrow Wilson will speak at Lexington, Ky. The previous itinerary for the Republican candidate called for him to be in Kentucky on September 5. When the plans of the President were made known, Mr. Hughes's managers changed their schedule.

Traditional campaign courtesy, they explained, forbade that two candidates for the Presidency should speak in the same state on the same day. Mr. Hughes will go to Kentucky on the 6th instead.

The directors of the Republican campaign have already marshalled their forces for the invasion of Maryland after Theodore Burton will open the attack there on the 28th. Colonel Roosevelt speaks there on the 31st. On September 6 Senator Henry Cabot Lodge will speak, and Mr. Hughes will arrive on the 7th or 8th.

JUDGE DELEHANTY'S
ELECTION IS URGED

Non-Partisan Committee of Lawyers Issues Letter.

A non-partisan committee composed of lawyers who desire the nomination and election of Judge James A. Delehanty to the Court of General Sessions yesterday issued a letter in support of his candidacy. The letter refers to the service of Judge Delehanty as an Assistant District Attorney from 1910 to January 1 last, when he was appointed to the bench of General Sessions, where he has since served. His nomination and election are urged on the ground of his fitness and experience.

The signers of the letter are: Horace E. Deming, chairman; John W. Hannon, secretary; Charles C. Burrougham, Raymond G. Brown, Emory R. Buckner, John Kirkland Clark, Howard C. Dickinson, William H. L. Edwards, George L. Ingraham, Edward J. McGuire, Frank Moss, Reuben Leslie Maynard, Jeremiah A. O'Leary, T. Channon Press, Henry A. Stickney, Edward Sanford, Howard Townsend, Al-muth C. Suspicion of $700 Ring Theft Pins Wrestler's Faith to Mat

Zbyszko Tells Court He Can't Down Powers of Oratory of Stranger to Whom He Gave Diamond "To Hold for Few Minutes."

There is no use now in trying to persuade Wladek Zbyszko, the wrestler, that his $700 diamond ring was not stolen from him. Ever since last March, when he gave it to an affable stranger "to hold for a few moments," he has been wrestling against the conviction that the stranger's neglect to return the jewel was a suspicious circumstance.

Yesterday his suspicions pinned to the mat his faith in human nature, so he went to Jefferson Market Court and announced to Magistrate Frothingham that he was beginning to believe he had been robbed.

Many times since the disappearance of the ring, Wladek has voiced this same suspicion to the gentlemen who took it, but each time the latter's eloquence has overcome his doubts. Again and again the wrestler has listened to the flood of explanations and then has let the man go free, while he held his head and pondered on the great power of oratory.

Wrestler's Strength No Use.

"You see," he told the magistrate yesterday, "his tongue is of such assistance to him, my strength is of no good to me. What he says, when you get a chance to think of it, so quickly that it sounds all right for the moment. Then he is gone."

According to his story, the wrestler's suspicions began to be aroused when he handed the ring to an admirer in Bothner's gymnasium, to hold for a moment, and could find neither man nor diamond afterward. The next day he met the stranger and was reassured that the ring was "home in the safe."

So slight is Zbyszko's faith in mankind, however, that when, later, he saw the ring in a pawnshop, the old idea that he had been cheated sprang into life again.

This was soothed by the following explanation which the athlete received when next the ring holder and he met.

Forgets About Ring.

"I have a customer for jewelry I can trust. You can trust me, but the pawnbroker won't trust me. So I take the ring because you trust me and give it to the pawnbroker who won't trust me."

Zbyszko related yesterday, "Then he became so indignant that I forgot about the ring and apologize."

SOLDIER STUDENTS BURNED

Government Will Investigate Rifles that

Donald Steele and William Faulkner, members of the Montclair Battalion of Citizen Soldiers, at Montclair, N. J., were slightly burned yesterday by the explosion of their rifles during target practice. The guns were recently received from the government. An investigation will be made.

MITCHEL GREETED ROOKIE MAYORS

Toledo and Princeton Executives Are Found in New Camp.

MEN ARE NOW DOWN
TO HARDEST WORK

Jitney Drivers Disgusted
Because They Don't Go Out Visiting.

(By Telegram to The Tribune.)

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 14.—After three days of preliminary work, the student soldiers got down to hard work today. In light marching order, by battalions, over sandy plains, with a ninety-mile gale blowing, filling their eyes with sand, they went through company, platoon and battalion movements this morning and afternoon.

There is as much difference between the students of the fourth camp and those of the second and third as day is from night so far as the city bright lights go. The men of the present camp are much older and are demonstrating that they are here for one purpose—to obtain all the training to be given. At other camps the jitneys and trolley cars could not carry all that wanted to visit the city each night. Now the cars are carrying passengers comfortably seated.

One rookie found in Company A of the 9th Regiment to-day proved to be the Mayor of Toledo, Charles M. Milroy, and a few companies further on in the same regiment was discovered Dr. Charles Brown, Mayor of Princeton, N. J. Both are prepared for the hardest kind of work. They met Mayor Mitchell to-day.

Thirty-five New Yorkers came here in a private car on the opening day of camp as members of a New York training battery, under the command of acting Captain S. Sanders. They had been drilling all last winter and the early spring and summer and were considered well up in that unit of the service. It was found that only ten had been at a previous camp, and because the others were not second year men they were ordered out of the battery and into companies of the infantry regiments, which they dislike. The matter has been put up to General Wood, but it has been decided that the other twenty-five will have to remain in the infantry, but may go into the battery at the beginning of the last week of the camp.

MOTORMAN RISKS LIFE
AMID FLAMES ON CAR

Sticks to Post to Save Passengers—Is Burned.

Cornelius McCarthy, a motorman of the Yonkers Railroad, narrowly escaped the death yesterday when a fuse of the car he was going up a steep hill in Yonkers.

The accident occurred on Yonkers Avenue near Central Avenue. There was a load report, and flames shooting from the controller box ignited the woodwork of the car. Though his clothes were blazing, McCarthy stuck to his post, and did not shut the power off until the car had reached the top of the hill, for the brakes had been disabled by the explosion.

The conductor finally put out the flames. Badly burned about the hands and body, McCarthy was taken to St. John's Hospital.

PENNSYLVANIA R. R.
AWARDS SCHOLARSHIPS

Nineteen Contestants Vied for Educational Prizes.

Officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad announced yesterday that the Frank Thompson scholarships, established in memory of a former president of the road, had been awarded to Frank Leslie Campbell, of Philadelphia, and Willard Bryant Hafford, of Columbus, Ohio. The scholarships were established in 1907 by Mr. Thompson's children.

The purpose is to enable children of deceased or living Pennsylvania employees to obtain a technical education. Campbell, who is seventeen years old and a graduate of the West Philadelphia High School, is the son of A. J. Campbell, a draftsman in the Philadelphia terminal division. Hafford is twenty-three years old and was graduated from the North High School, Columbus. His father, J. W. Hafford, is dead.

Nineteen applicants contested for the scholarships, eleven from lines east of Pittsburgh and eight from lines west. The scholarships go to the contestant in each division having the highest average.

July Smashes All Sales-Records For Our Wonderful Year

Tire dealers this July sold to car owners more United States Tires than in any previous month of this year—our sales-records to dealers prove this.

And this is the year of astounding and record-breaking sales increases for United States Tires.

Such great sales growth proves two things,

—that car owners who have used
United States Tires continue to use them;

—that car owners who have been using other tires are now largely buying United States Tires.

Have you joined this gigantic army of wise motor car owners?
